I would like to send some info from asp page to service. I use odata in mvc. There is my method (controller side): public IEnumerable Get(string site, int user) { //some code } I would like to call this method using ajax. How can I do this? Is this allowed? Is it possible that some info may come from some other page? Thank You in advance. A: You could use a System.Web.Mvc.JsonResult, that is a JsonResult returning a Json string: // controller method public ActionResult MyJsonResult(string site, int user) { // some code return Json(new { someData = "The user is " + user, etc. }); } Then you could reference this using jQuery like this: $("#myBtn").click(function() { $.ajax({ url: "", method: "POST", data: { site: "example.com", user: 45

Bloons Tower Defense 5 Deluxe Serial Key Generator This is a guide on how to unlock the Bloons TD5 Gameplay Demo on Steam with Bloons TD5 Deluxe DLC. for some reason i managed to activate the Key and now the game runs fine in Steam,. I've searched for a solution myself, but so far none work.Dear Editor: Brugada syndrome (BrS) is an autosomal dominant inherited arrhythmogenic disease characterized by a ventricular arrhythmia with the ST-segment elevation on the electrocardiogram (ECG) and a risk of sudden cardiac death, even in the absence of structural heart disease. The prevalence of BrS is estimated to be about 1.2--1.6 per 10,000 in Japan[@bib1] and its prevalence is lower in East Asian populations. The clinical diagnosis of BrS is made by the diagnostic criteria that is classified into type 1 and type 2 BrS. Patients with type 1 BrS show ST-segment elevation in leads V1 to V3. On the other hand, patients with type 2 BrS show ST-segment elevation in leads V1 to V4. The diagnosis of type 2 BrS is frequently misdiagnosed as other conditions. Here we reported a case with atypical ST-segment elevation in the inferior limb leads of the electrocardiogram (ECG), although the patient met the diagnostic criteria for type 2 BrS. A 53-year-old man with a history of paroxysmal atrial fibrillation presented with chest pain that was generalized in nature and an episode of syncope. The patient was taking amiodarone (200 mg/day) and bisoprolol (5 mg/day) for a paroxysmal atrial fibrillation. He had been taking the medication since the age of 37 years. During the admission, the physical examination showed a blood pressure of 105/68 mmHg, a heart rate of 49 beats/min, a respiratory rate of 16 breaths/min, a saturation of 100% on room air, and a normal blood test. No abnormalities were observed in the evaluation of the coronary angiogram. An ECG showed a normal sinus rhythm with a heart rate of 47 beats/min and QTc of 457 msec (Fig. 1{ref-type="fig"}).Figure 1Initial ECG. 82138339de
