Unit of product of two continuous functions Let $f, g: X \rightarrow X$ be two continuous functions in a metric space (X, ρ) . Let $U \subseteq X$ be open, $\forall \epsilon > 0$. Question: Can we conclude that the function $h: X \rightarrow X$, defined by $h(x) = \min\{f(x), g(x)\}$ for all $x \in X$, is continuous at $x_0 \in U$? A: No. Let $X = [0, 1]$ and $h(x) = 1$ if $x \in [0, \frac{1}{2}]$ and $h(x) = 0$ if $x \in (\frac{1}{2}, 1]$. Let $U = (\frac{1}{2}, 1]$ and $f(x) = 0$ and $g(x) = 1$. Let $x_0 = 0$. For any ϵ Perioperative platelet transfusion in resected colorectal cancer surgery: a randomized, prospective study. To determine if platelet-rich plasma transfusion improves postoperative outcomes compared with conventional platelet transfusion (PCT) in patients who undergo resection of colorectal cancer. A prospective, randomized study was conducted in patients who underwent resection of colorectal cancer. Patients were randomized to either PCT or platelet-rich plasma (PRP) transfusion. The two groups were compared in terms of length of hospitalization and infectious complications. Fifty-eight patients were enrolled in the study. Twelve patients were excluded from the study, five because of difficulties in cell separation and seven because of the presence of concomitant disorders. Thirty-six patients were randomized to receive PCT, and 38 patients received PRP transfusion. No significant differences in baseline characteristics were observed between the two groups. The two groups were similar in terms of length of hospitalization, operative time, blood transfusion, and infectious complications. Seven patients in the PRP group had grade 2 and 1 patient in the PCT group had grade 3 complications. Platelet transfusion with PRP did not reduce the length of hospitalization and infectious complications.

Q: Finding the inverse of exponential without using the Taylor Series I'm trying to find the inverse of an exponential function without using the Taylor series. Can you help me please? Here's what I have so far:

$$y = \ln(x) \iff x = e^y$$

$$\ln(\ln(e^y)) = y \iff y = \ln(\ln(x))$$

$$\ln(e^y) = \ln(x) \iff y = \ln(\ln(x))$$

$$e^y = x \iff y =$$

$\ln(\ln(x)) = \ln(x) = \ln(\ln(x)) \iff x = e^{\ln(\ln(x))}$
A: From $e^y = x$ implies $e^{\ln(x)} = x$ impl
